What percentage of Denmark's energy supply is oil?

In 2022, oil represented 37% of Denmark's Total Energy Supply (TES), in line with the International Energy Agency (IEA) average of 35%. Its stable share over the past decade saw a slight decrease in Total Final Energy Consumption (TFEC) from 45% in 2011 to 38% in 2021, primarily due to shifts in the transport sector.

What is Denmark's energy source?

More than two-thirds of Denmark's renewable energy comes from bioenergy, which is energy stored in organic material or biomass. Agriculture is big business in Denmark, and it indirectly helps provide energy too, with manure, animal fats, and straw used as the basis for biogas and liquid biofuels.

Does Denmark use natural gas?

Natural gas was responsible for 6% of the country's electricity production (2019); in district heating, it had a 20% share of the energy mix (2017). In Denmark, natural gas plays a minor role in the energy system, with strategies aimed at reducing its use and phasing it out entirely.

Does Denmark have a strong focus on securing sustainable biomass?

There is a strong focus on securing sustainable biomass in Denmark. The world's top innovators in wind energy include the Danish company Vestas and Siemens Gamesa, which has Danish roots. Together these two companies had a share of almost a third of global wind turbine installations in 2018, according to GlobalData (preliminary results).

Why did Denmark rethink its energy policy?

The 1973 oil crisis forced Denmark to rethink its energy policy; in 1978 coal contributed 18%, and the first wind turbine was built, along with the creation of a wind turbine industry. The 1979 energy crisis pushed further change, and in 1984 the North Sea natural gas projects began.
