Is Gambit energy developing an energy storage solution for Texas' grid?

Gambit Energy, a subsidiary from Elon Musk's Tesla, is developing an energy storage solution for the Texas' grid. Although the works on the site and company's involvement in the project were a secret, Bloomberg confirmed the news today.

Does Elon Musk own the gambit energy storage park?

A photograph taken on March 4 by a drone shows the Gambit Energy Storage Park in Angleton, Texas. The utility-scale battery project is owned by a Tesla subsidiary. Elon Musk is getting into the Texas power market, with previously unrevealed construction of a gigantic battery connected to an ailing electric grid that nearly collapsed last month.

How many homes will the Gambit project power?

The battery in question is reportedly built to hold about 100 megawatts of power. To offer some perspective here, the Solar Energy Industries Association estimates that a single megawatt would be enough to power about 164 homes across the country--meaning that the Gambit project could hypothetically power about 16,400 homes.

Is Gambit a Tesla subsidiary?

A filing with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission lists Gambit as a Tesla subsidiary. Executives from Tesla did not respond to multiple requests for comment. Shares of Tesla gave up early gains Monday, falling 6% to $562.31 as of 3:17 p.m. in New York. The stock has fallen for the past four days and is down about 20% so far this year.

Where is the Gambit project in Angleton?

The Gambit project is not hard to find in Angleton, a small town of roughly 3,000 people in the middle of the Brazoria National Wildlife Refuge. But people on the construction site appear to have instructions to avoid drawing attention or answering questions from passersby.

Who developed the Gambit project?

Photographer: Mark Felix/Bloomberg The Gambit project was originally developed by San Francisco-based Plus Power, a privately held renewables company that has battery operations in several states. Scott Albert, the former city manager of Angleton, said it was obvious that Plus Power was working with Tesla.
