Could Saudi Arabia become part of the global battery industry?

Saudi Arabia is a step closer to becoming part of the global battery industry after deals to develop lithium processing and anode material projects in the country. The deals could make Saudi Arabia's lithium ion supply chain the most developed in the Middle East, which right now has virtually no battery material capacity. Saudi Arabia's [...]

Why is Saudi Arabia planning a second lithium processing facility?

Saudi Arabia is planning a second lithium processing facility, as it steps up efforts to work with western partners to develop its battery supply chain. The facility, which will use feedstock mined in Austria to produce refined lithium hydroxide for BMW, is a sign of how supply chains to process the metal are slowly developing outside China.

Will Saudi Arabia develop a lithium hydroxide plant in 2026?

Earlier this year Saudi Arabia signed an agreement with EV Metals, an Australian battery manufacturer, to develop a lithium hydroxide plant that will be in production in 2026. Lithium processing is highly energy intensive and Sage said Saudi Arabia was an attractive location for a processing facility because of its cheap energy.

Will Saudi Arabia extract lithium from brine?

REUTERS/Hamad I Mohammed/File Photo Purchase Licensing Rights LONDON/DUBAI, March 8 (Reuters) - Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates' national oil companies plan to extract lithium from brine in their oilfields, in line with efforts to diversify their economies and profit from the shift to electric vehicles (EVs), three sources told Reuters.

Can Saudi Aramco extract lithium from oilfield brine?

Saudi Aramco and Abu Dhabi National Oil Company are teaming up to extract lithium from oilfield brine, as the Gulf states advance their move into electric vehicles production. Saudi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman is dedicated to finding alternative sources of energy and is leaving oil in the ground.

Will the EV industry rely on lithium?

Analysts say the EV industry is likely to depend on lithium for many years to come, because cheaper battery technologies are yet to reach market maturity. Saudi Arabia's oil wealth means it can afford to establish itself as a hub for EVs to make use of whatever lithium it produces.
