Will Serbia's 'lithium deal' be a green Boon?

Serbia's 'lithium deal' is coming back as part of an initiative that officials in Brussels, Belgrade and Berlin hope will be a huge green boon for the continent. A rather sudden and under-the-radar meeting took place in Serbia's capital last week.

Will Serbia meet Europe's lithium demand?

The Serbian government said it aims to meet at least 20% of Europe's lithium demand. For Europe's green transformation, the prospect of a huge lithium supply in the heart of the continent would be a huge relief. Most of the lithium Europe uses currently comes from Asia and South America.

Is Mercedes-Benz a potential customer of lithium from Serbia?

Germany's Mercedes-Benz (MBGn.DE) is a potential customer of lithium from Serbia and would support bringing more of the battery value chain to Serbia, the company's chief executive Ola Kaellenius said in Belgrade on Friday. 'They are building a very modern mine and we are a potential customer.

Where is lithium found in Serbia?

Serbia has vast lithium deposits near the western city of Loznica, where a mining project being developed by Anglo-Australian mining giant Rio Tinto has been a perennial political fault line in the Balkan country in recent years.

How much lithium can Serbia produce a year?

Rio Tinto has said Serbia's lithium reserves in Loznica could produce an estimated 58,000 tonnes annually, enough for 1.1 million electric vehicles. During an interview with Germany's Handelsblatt ahead of the Belgrade summit, Vucic said conversations were ongoing with a range of European automakers including Mercedes, Volkswagen and Stellantis.
